

Another good idea is to pick toys and activities that both you and your guest want to use and play with. When you are playing together, you should stay in the same area where your guest is. It is not polite to leave your guest and go into another room or area. This would probably make your guest sad or confused. You want your guest to become your friend, so you want your friend to be happy. This probably will make your guest want to play with you again.

Another rule is to make your guest feel welcome! Ask if they need anything, such as a drink or a snack. Ask if they would like to do any particular activity or play a game that they like to play. If they tell you about something they like to do, you can ask questions or talk about what they like. It is the polite thing to you. This will make your guests feel important and special. This will probably make your guest want to play with you again.
