

Sticker chart

I make copies of this sticker chart and put one in each student's folder. Students place stickers on it to follow the path, as they would in a board game. The prizes occur randomly, which seems to add excitement for the kids. When they finish a sheet, they start another (I remind them it is so they can keep getting prizes all year... otherwise it may look like an unending cycle to them). At the end of the semester or year we staple all the sheets together for them to take home.

I have the students use a date stamper to indicate the date under each sticker. This prevents "extra" stickers from somehow sneaking onto the sheet. I discovered that my students like using the date stamper almost as much as they like the stickers and prizes.

Contributed by JoAnne Tully

